DIABETES

Diabetes is a chronic health condition where the body is unable to produce enough insulin to control the level of glucose (sugar) in the blood. This results in high blood sugar. If not controlled, diabetes can cause long-term problems involving the kidney, heart, eyes, circulation and nerves.

Your actual blood sugar level is a result of the balance between several factors. These include what kind of food and how much you eat, how much exercise you get and the amount of insulin available in your body. Stresses to the body such as infections can cause high blood sugar. Taking too much of your diabetes medicine or not eating regular meals can lead to dangerously low blood sugar.

HOME CARE:

- 1) Follow your prescribed diabetic diet
- 2) Monitor blood sugars as advised
- 3) Take insulin or oral diabetic medicine exactly as ordered
- 4) Try to achieve your ideal weight
- 5) Avoid tobacco smoking, which worsens the effect of diabetes on your circulation
- 6) Exercise regularly
- 7) Pay close attention to foot care to avoid infections there
- 8) Wear a Medic-Alert bracelet
- 9) If you feel like your blood sugar may be too high, measure it by a blood or urine test. If it is above your usual range, use the "sliding scale" Regular insulin dose your doctor gave you to correct this. If no "sliding scale" orders were given, contact your doctor for further advice.
- 10) If you are unable to eat your normal amount at each meal due to illness or vomiting, you MUST reduce your insulin dose. Contact your doctor to ask for a temporary adjustment of your insulin dose. If you cannot eat, and there is a delay in reaching your doctor, reduce your daily insulin dose to ONE-HALF (½) of what you usually take. Monitor your blood sugar every 4-6 hours, until you are able to begin eating again normally.

RETURN PROMPTLY or contact your doctor if any of the following occur:

- HIGH BLOOD SUGAR: frequent urination, dizziness, thirst, headache, nausea or vomiting, abdominal pain, drowsiness or loss of consciousness
- LOW BLOOD SUGAR: fatigue, headache, shakes, excess sweating, hunger, anxiety, restlessness, reduced vision, drowsiness, weakness, confusion or loss of consciousness

DIABETES WITH HIGH BLOOD SUGAR

You have been treated for high blood sugar (hyperglycemia). This may be the result of an infection or other illness, not following your diet (eating too many sweets or starches), not taking enough insulin or other factors.

HOME CARE:

- 1) High blood sugar may cause symptoms that you can learn to recognize, such as those listed below.
- 2) If you feel like your blood sugar may be too high, measure it by a blood or urine test. If it is above your usual range, use the "sliding scale" Regular insulin dose your doctor gave you to correct this. If no "sliding scale" orders were given, contact your doctor for further advice.
- 3) If your blood sugar is over 300, and you can't reach your doctor, call or return to this facility.

FOLLOW UP: Monitor and write down your blood sugars at least twice a day (before breakfast and before dinner) during the next 3-5 days. See your doctor during the next week to review these records
